George Sherouse and Mastering the Craft of Medical Physics

Dan Pavord
Allegheny Health Network
“And these things we have described the more fully, from being convinced of the great importance of an apprentice learning from the first to do every thing that they undertake thoroughly and well.”

But “it will do” is a very bad maxim, especially for a person learning a business; the right principle is to ask oneself, “is it as good as it can be made?” or, at least, “is it as good as I can make it?”
Details
BEAUTIFUL MINDS INSPIRE OTHERS
COMPLEX
SIMPLE
CHOOSE WISELY